Notes:

1. According to order of National Defense Ministry, from January 1, 2009, "Military student (non-military expenditure)", "Ministry of National Defense Civil servants and their family members", and "Military employed worker" are required to pay the NHI co-payment insurance following "NHI regulations".
2. According to the Bureau of National Health Insurance, medications and clinical materials not covered by the insurance should all be self-pay. Medications require co-payment: every NT$100 additional drug cost involves NT$20 self-pay, the maximum self-pay is NT$200.
3. Individuals that do not provide sufficient evidence for the special identity or national health insurance must be self-pay. The complete proof, ID card and NHI card may be provided within 10 days with the medical receipts to obtain refunds.
4. Children under 3 years old (covered by the national health insurance) will only be charged with the registration fee NT$100; the co-payment part is not required. However, other services not covered by the health insurance must be self-pay.
5. Dentistry Division: no co-payment is required for medications.
6. As for rehabilitation, the amount of co-payment depends on the complexity of the treatment.
7. Military officers and students: NHI co-payment will be totally exempted (if the item is not covered by the national health insurance, basic fees for general hygienic materials should be paid; if the doctor has confirmed the necessity of the treatment, the medical expenses can be approved by the administration procedures as totally free.).
8. National military dependent: basic NHI co-payment may be totally exempted for outpatient; however, the outpatient co-payment for medications, examinations and tests must be paid according to the standard fees announced by the Bureau of National Health Insurance (if the item is not covered by the national health insurance, the total expenses must be self-pay; if the doctor has confirmed the necessity of the treatment, the medical expenses can be approved by the administration procedures as totally free. Basic fees for general hygienic materials should still be paid.).
9. Any modification to the standard fee will be announced accordingly.
